

Chapter Fifteen

God has told his children many stories, stories about the creation of earth, about the creation of man and women, it is now time to tell the story of you. To many of you, the story of you, is already known, you come from your mother, and father, but there is much more to the story than simply your birth, there is your creation. God asked that you returned to this planet, that you serve him in another way, that you show God your love for him by coming back to earth. You will not remember your prior lives, this does not mean that they did not exist, what happens is that when you are chosen to return, your thoughts are removed from you, this is not done consciously, it is done because that is how God wants it to be done, if you remembered all the lives that you had, you would have no time for the life you are living. Mankind has always questioned what happens when you die, where do we go, what happens to us, the question you should be asking is why am I spending so much time questioning, instead of living the life I have. Your life is so short already, spend it doing what God wants you to do, enjoy your life, live your life, have love in your life these are things that God wants from his children. God has told his children on many occasions do not question my existence, for I exist, for I am real, for I am with you now and always, but mankind has always had this unrelenting need to find out where do we as humans come from, do we come from beings on other planets, do we come from God, do we come from an act of love, mankind will always ask these questions, but mankind knows the answers to these questions, for they know that God exists. God continues to show mankind that his existence, every time you see a sunset every time you see a thing of beauty, you know yourself where it comes from accept God, go on with your life, include God in your life.

There have been many questions that mankind has felt this need to ask of their God, what are we doing, what is the meaning of my life, am I meant to do more with my life, what mankind must learn to accept is their life, live their life, enjoy those things that God has given you, these things were given not for God's enjoyment, but that mankind could enjoy those things, mankind feels this need to govern over each other, this is fine, if you're the one governing, but not so if you're the one being governed. Mankind must learn to spend more time doing what God has asked them to do, love one another, accept one another, share your love for God with others, include God in your life, by doing these small steps for God, God will bestow great riches on you, maybe not in money and gold, but in heaven. As we were talking about this story it is about you, mankind, what you want, what you will get, and what you should get. There is a lot of talk about what God is, where is God located, is there such a thing as God, God wants all to know that he does exist, that he is here with you all now. That there is no need to look for him, for he is with each one of you now. What would mankind do if they found out all they wanted to know, not only about God, but about all things, would they be more understanding, more accepting of themselves, others, of all things, God thinks not, for mankind has always wanted to know everything not for the purpose most would have to learn to accept and understand, but that mankind wants to know so that they may control it, point it into their direction, to make what they want to happen.

There has been much talk about the arch of the covenant, that to possess it would be to control people, nations, but this is not so, the only power that the arch has is what God gives to it. You have powers, powers that God has given to mankind, since creation, knowing the need for healing, to be able to cure oneself from diseases that God knew would happen over time, but mankind has forgotten how to control it, how to operate what God has given mankind. People must learn that to heal oneself you must first believe that you are deserving of the healing, that your life is what God has made it, and what God will make of it, but mankind feels that they are undeserving of love, love from others, love from God. Mankind must understand that through God's love for you all things are possible, that through God's love, all can be healed, that planets can be changed, that all things are possible, but only through God's love, and acceptance. Only good things can come from healings, you are not able to hurt others only to perform a healing, this is not what God has intended it for, God gives you these gifts, for he so loves you all. There are other gifts which we will talk about later, gifts that God and only God could give. To understand these gifts, you can only understand that there is a God, that he loves you all, how else would mankind get these gifts, did they just appear, many skeptics can point to all things, and say see this is why it is not so, but to the skeptics God points how?, if not by me, then how do these miracles happen?.

Mankind is all looking for answers, we again state that some things are not meant to be answered that some things are nothing more than faith, you must believe, to believe in God and to have faith is all that you need sometimes, this is not to say that loved ones in your life is not important, but there comes times in all lives, that it is between you and God, that through God's guidance and wisdom all can be answered, perhaps not in the way you are seeking, but through God's ways. Challenges come to all at one point or the other, death, sacrifices, love, children, all these things can become challenging, but through God's love and understanding, God will show you the way, the way to raise your children, the way to share your love with others, the way to accept death, for through death there is a new beginning, a beginning in God's love and light. Mankind must learn to accept that death is not the end, but for all a new beginning, a beginning of their choice, in death it is not a prison that one serves out eternity, through death, you have new directions to go, to follow what God has set out for you, some in death have more to learn than others, in these cases they have a different path to follow, but there is no judgment in heaven, for the judgment that you have already received by being on this planet is all that anyone should need. This is not to say that all proceed into heaven, for those who have been negative, for those who have killed, for those who have been so negative, they must remain on this planet seeking out wisdom and guidance from God and his messengers until their day comes that their deeds have either earned them the right to continue on or that others have found the need to help them cross over. Only those who are ready to cross over are permitted to do so. This does not mean that all must be willing to accept death, for death comes to all, but on God's time, not ours. Death must be seen by some to be a cold and final stop to life, but what all must rely on is that through death we are reborn that we come into the fold of what God has planned for us, that even in tragic circumstances God is with us, that he will guide us into the light, for through God's light a and only Gods light can man be found whole again, that in death the soul is set free, to fly into the realm that is God. God shows all that are of good heart what it is they need to do, but those who have gone against what God has asked them to do, remain on earth in the dark searching for the sign that will free them from this burden.

Some of the reason for God to write this book, is to open mankind's eyes to God, to show you that the fears and promises made by mankind are not always the way of God, that God makes no promise to mankind, but that mankind must honor the promises it has made to God. In the days ahead there will be many signs that will point to a change, a change in the planet, a change in society, a change in faiths, it is important that mankind understand that God is here, and now and always with his children, that his children must learn to honor him by doing what they have promised to God. Make no others higher than God, accept God as the one, and only God, Include God in your life, love others, and yourself, watch out for the sick, and poor, learn to accept all for what they are brothers, and sisters in God. For with Gods love, your knowledge, your faith, will only grow stronger, that new ways of belief will happen, that new worlds will open up for you, by accepting God creator of the universe as the one, and only God you will free yourself of the old punishments, and open yourself up to love and accept for all things.
